Cookies and how we use them

What is a cookie?

A cookie is a small file placed on your computer's hard drive. It enables our website to identify your computer as you view different pages on our website.

Cookies allow websites and applications to store your preferences in order to present content, options or functions that are specific to you. They also enable us to see information like how many people use the website and what pages they tend to visit.

How we use cookies

We may use cookies to collect data for the purposes of Google analytics and to:

- Analyse our web traffic using an analytics package - aggregated usage data helps us improve the website structure, design, content and functions
- Recognise when you return to our website - we may show your relevant content, or provide functionality you used previously
- Cookies do not provide us with access to your computer or any information about you, other than that which you choose to share with us.

Controlling cookies

You are not obliged to accept such cookies and can adjust your browser to block them. You can use your web browser's cookie settings to determine how our website uses cookies. If you do not want our website to store cookies on your computer or device, you should set your browser to refuse cookies.

However, please note that doing this may affect how our website functions. Some pages and services may become unavailable to you.

Unless you have changed your browser to refuse cookies, our website will issue cookies when you visit it.

Continued use of the site will be deemed to be consent to the use of such cookies
